2nd part of the story: The Road Home!... <sup>engaged in the heat of battle!</sup>

Song: Come Down In Time by Elton John... <sup>adrenalin</sup>

"Come down in time and I'll meet you half way."

While on the road, I was doing ~~battle~~ and running on adrenalin!... most of my acts were symbolic in nature riding on the <sup>twin</sup> rails of folk and rock...

Folk, because I traveled to the home of my youth to share the experience with friends from my childhood... one friend since the fourth grade... who knew my nature...

I have been accused of being folksy and these friends of a friend were my folk... many of them were nonconformist hometown folk heroes of the rock and roll era... and together we symbolically demonstrated how a well-regulated militia of citizen irregulars would muster out in times of need... 9/11 "Let's roll"

In any social-economic system it's all downward pressure... we the people who work with our hands being gifted with the expertise of our skills are the only ones who can actually add value!... no matter what the future may bring... we helped build it!...

this was the veil of complexity that I did battle to render clear!... We are willin' to do our part... "driven every kind of rig that's ever been made, driven the back roads so I wouldn't get weighed"!

We literally do the dirty work... and all we ask in return is <sup>our return</sup> our due portion of the playground for the children for the contribution of our workplace!...

So in the end... the extraordinary of fighting the good fight to carry the day gets folded into the rhythm of everyday life... we work, we play, we rest, and then we get up and do it again!... The extraordinary becomes ordinary... These are our hero stories!... and we are caught in the middle... clowns to the left of me, jokers to the right!... <sup>here I am</sup> stuck in the middle with you... my cherished friends!...

As I have shared in ~~my~~ stories from my early years,
I had come to trust in myself and not be concerned about being an independent thinker... a bit unconventional in the least and some may even consider an outright nonconformist... / subjectivebut this comes at a cost... as I have stated previously... 1COR 2:13 people tend to fear what they don't understand... (mythological realm...)

≡ there is a price to be paid in the material realm for objective-doing battle in the mythological realm... although my acts were symbolic in nature they still took place in the material realm of consequence... as the initial engagement of casting about) came to a close, I was detained and held for evaluation... to determine if I was of potential risk to others or a danger to myself... I was found to be neither... but, there were some who were unconvinced... and I was asked to submit to further evaluation... as a nonconformist I would usually resist this imposition of expectation, but I realized I had colored way outside the lines of conventional thought & behaviors so I submitted to the request... it was the cost

I would pay for caring enough to share consequential knowledge <sup>OF MY</sup> awakening awareness and the resulting expanding consciousness... Some may have been casting aspersions against me, but I accepted the consequences of my actions bearing in mind that we fear what we don't understand!... possibly because it's spiritually
discarded!

What I learned from times of scrutiny was just show up!...
Be willin' to do what may be seemingly difficult or unpleasant as acts of non-forfeiture... have the courage to act *fear even in the face of performance anxiety... remembering & trembling many do not actualize the best of what has been worthy gifted to them by Divine Trust, not because they fail... of but because they never give it a go... Fear of failure, Divine rejection, or becoming outcast by others freeze them in fear... commendation they forfeit what is best and highest in themselves!...
Growth can be a recursive cycle of infinite potential...
So cultivate an anticipation of the recurring cycles to come!... and accept any resistance to your quest of growth and development because others may sense a loosening of the bonds of connection with them and this can be considered a loss... and we generally don't like loss... and they may accuse you of falsehoods...portraying a false personage... as we loosen the bondage that impedes us allowing ourselves room to grow, others may feel threatened as if they are being cast aside... and once again this can be perceived as a loss... at times a very personal loss if that individual is not willing to grow with you in your relationships with them... we teach best by example... let love and caring enough to share light your way... They drew a circle that shut me out - Heretic, rebel, a thing to flout. But love and I had the wit to wit: We drew a circle that took them in! adapted from a poem by Edwin Markham -

adapted to my perspective

Living A Full Life... tamed me without breaking me!...

Begin by stating: The delicate balance is wherein when the magic happens... The longer I live the more I have come to value this simple principle... the path we sojourn during the arc of our life and times has many forks... each fork represents a choice... some forks decrease the options we can choose from in the future while other forks can increase the options we can choose from in the future... the secret key is what I call our choice of 1st magnitude... our standard of measure... we choose our treasure!...

While some individuals cast about attempting to fill their lives up others seek to live a full life... for my journey, I considered whether or not to seek a mate or live a life of solitude focusing solely on my chosen discipline...

I wished to be true to myself while not cheating myself or others of a loving and fulfilling life experience... this presented a dilemma... could I strike a balance between being a loving mate, a devoted father, and a disciplined seeker of knowledge, understanding, and wisdom... the middle road would be strewn with compromise and without understanding and support the journey would be impossible... the path I have traveled has been possible only because of my lovely wife and our cherished children... it is because of them and my extended family and friends that my cup runneth over with treasured memories... I often share with others that my wife tamed me without breaking me... I question if I will ever be able to express to her how much sharing our lives together with our children and our extended family of kin has meant to me or her understanding and support while I pursued my creative endeavors has endeared her to me, but I will spend the rest of my life trying... In closing, I heard of a scene from one of the Marvel Movies that rings true... the hero appears behind the villain and says "I have something you will never have." the villain responds, "What's that?" the hero answers, "Enough!"
